You are correct. The issue was not "fully vetted" by me prior to the requested payment plan.

Mr. Trask,

Sorry to bother you again, but this is what I intend to write in my article.....and I want to make sure I get it right.

When Dunedin mayor Julie Bujalski caught heat last summer for not paying her boat slip fees in the city-owned marina, she claimed that a payment plan she entered into had been "fully vetted by our city attorney." That claim was untrue. City attorney Tom Trask confirmed today to Dunedin Reporter (DR)

today that he did "not approve" Bujalski's payment plan. Citing attorney client privilege, Trask declined to say whether he was at all consulted on the mayor's dealings involving the marina

I'm going beyond what you told me, but I believe it's what you would have told me had I asked if you had been consulted at all.

Thanks. My cell is 727.710.2800 should you need it.

Regards,

Tom Rask
